Description

2014 SCOUT 245 ABACO

Scout boats are renowned throughout the world as not only being comparable with the other leading brands in their segment but adding that extra refinement, "a touch of class" to the finishes on there boats.

That same attention to detail carries through the appearance of the whole boat and highlights the sporty design. It's a sleek lines with a small step up at the cockpit as the flat sheer line carries forward to the wide flare of the bow.

Construction is handlaid fibreglass with box stringers and a composite transom that is tied into the hull, the deck and hull are bonded together and pumped full of liquid foam while the hull is still in the mould, which completes the bonding process of hull to deck to form a strong monocoque vessel.

With the hull full of foam, Scout rates the boat as unsinkable and this, along with the added benefit of a self-draining deck, will endear it to offshore fishos.
